TITLE 1 NEWS

We would like to remind all parents that Aliceville Elementary School is a Title 1 Schoolwide Project School. AES receives federal funds based on the school’s student free and reduced lunch count. These funds help our school provide services and materials to help our students achieve the goals outlined in the No Child Left Behind Act. A public meeting was held in your school at which time the Title I program and parents rights and responsibilities were explained. The AES Title I Plan and the LEA Title I plan can be reviewed by the public at anytime. If you wish to review the plan, please call the school or the central office and make an appointment to do so. If anyone has questions about Title 1, Mrs. Anthony or Miss Ball will be happy to answer them. They can be reached at the Board of Education central office at 367-2080. If anyone has comments of dis-satisfaction about the plan, submit them in writing to the school principal or Mrs. Vanessa Anthony at the Board of Education, PO Box 32, Carrollton,AL 35447.

Due to federal requirements, there are items that the Pickens County Board of Education must make available to the parents/guardians of our students. These items are in this newsletter. If you have any questions about any of these items, please call Mrs. Anthony at the Board of Education.

AES TITLE I PARENTAL INVOLVEMENT POLICY

A major goal of Aliceville Elementary School’s Title I program is to encourage greater involvement of parents in the education of their children in partnership with Title I and their school. As mandated by Department of Education regulations and in accordance with Aliceville Elementary School’s philosophy of nurturing parents toward recognizing and fulfilling that responsibility, the following actions will be taken to facilitate parental involvement.

1. Will involve parents in an organized and ongoing way in the development and updating of the schoolwide program plan.
2. Will involve parents in an organized, ongoing, and timely way, in the planning, review, and improvement of Title I programs.

4. Will distribute and explain to parents their child’s student assessment results, as well as explain the state’s expectations/requirements of high performance for all students.
5. Make available to parents the schools’ performance profile (state report card) from the state assessment. The report will also be published in the newspaper.
6. Will provide a description and explanation of the curriculum in use at the school, the forms of assessment used to measure student progress and the proficiency levels students are expected to meet. This will be done through meetings, conferences, and newsletters.

 12. Will provide timely response to parents’ recommendations, requests, questions, or suggestions that have been offered in meetings held for parents.

LEA TITLE I PARENT INVOLVEMENT POLICY

As mandated by Title I Guidelines and the No Child Left Behind Act, the Pickens County Board of Education intends that parents or guardians of children being served by its Title I program have an adequate opportunity to participate in the planning and implementation of the program and an awareness of the child’s instructional status and progress in the program.

It is a goal of the Pickens County Board of Education to develop a strong partnership with the home. When parents and schools work together, student achievement increases and both parents and students develop a positive attitude about school. The intent of this policy is to result in consciously employing proven parenting activities in a more efficient, consistent, and effective manner as well as generating new ways of strengthening the partnership.

The Pickens County School System:

1. Will involve parents in an organized and ongoing way in the development and updating of the Title I plan and in the process of school review and improvement.
2. Will utilize a parent involvement coordinator who will assist schools in the coordination and implementation of effective parental involvement activities.
3. Will build the schools’ and parents’ capacity for strong parental involvement through workshops and professional development activities.
4. Will coordinate and integrate parental involvement strategies and practices with the parents of other agencies, such as, Head Start and the BEE Program.
5. Will conduct an evaluation in the spring of each school year regarding the content and effectiveness of the parental involvement policy to determine whether there has been increased parent participation and to determine if there are any barriers that are hindering parent participation.
6. Will use the results of the evaluation of the parental involvement policy when revising the schoolwide project plans at the district and school levels.
7. Will provide timely response to parents’ recommendations, requests, or questions relating to the Title I program.
8. Will have each school’s BLT and administrator conduct a self-study of parental involvement practices using the following seven basic principles considered essential to home-school partnerships.
 - a. Every aspect of the school climate is open, helpful and friendly.
 - b. Communications with parents (whether about school policies and programs or about their own children) are frequent, clear and two-way.
 - c. Parents are treated as collaborators in the educational process, with a strong complementary role to play in their children’s school learning and behavior.

- d. Parents are encouraged, both formally and informally, to comment on school policies and to share in the decision making.
- e. The principal and other school administrators actively express and promote the philosophy of partnerships with all families.
- f. The school encourages volunteer participation from parents and the community at large.
- g. The school recognizes its responsibility to forge a partnership with all families in the school, not simply those most easily available.

Anyone who wishes to review the school’s Title I Plan may do so by calling the school principal.

How Important is Parent Involvement?

Research is clear on this subject. Parent involvement in education makes a huge difference in your child’s school success. So even if your child seems unconcerned about your presence, he’s surely affected by it.

In fact, many home tasks are associated with higher student achievement. The National Education Association (NEA) strongly suggests talking about school, helping with homework and monitoring your child’s time.

According to the NEA, studies also show that the earlier you get involved, the better. You will see improved attendance, behavior and grades. So find simple ways to be involved. Talk with the teachers. Stay connected throughout the school years. Small investments now will yield a lifetime of rewards.

MAKING SCHOOL A PRIORITY

Sometimes it is difficult to keep children focused on learning. What can you do to make school a top priority for your children? Following are some simple ideas that can be useful to you as a parent.

- Make attendance job #1. Let your children know that unless they are sick, they must go to school. Try to schedule dentist and doctor appointments after school hours. If possible, take family vacations when school is not in session.
- Show you care. Want your children to know that you are interested in their learning? Talk about their school activities and projects. Attend as many school events as you can. If homework and after-school activities conflict, speak up: “I know you have basketball practice this evening, but homework comes first. If you can’t get your homework done, you don’t need play to.”
- Keep it upbeat. Try to set a positive example for your children, even when your own day has been difficult. Say positive things about school, teachers, and other children. Help your child realize to respect the differences in others.
